Topic of Complex Sentence with Adverb Clause and Adjective Clause.

Part A

1. Explain in your own words what an adverb clause is.

An adverb clause is a group of words that contains a subject and a verb and functions like an adverb — it tells us when, why, where, how, or under what condition something happens. It usually begins with a subordinating conjunction (for example: when, because, if, although).

2. Explain the difference between the following subordinating conjunctions. Provide one sentence of each.

a. After and Once/As Soon As

- After shows that one action happens later than another. It simply marks the order of events, without emphasizing speed or immediacy. The first action finishes, then the second starts.

Example :

I Will wash the dishes after I finish my meal

- Once and as soon as indicate that the second action begins immediately or almost immediately after the first action. There is little or no delay between the two actions.

Example :

you can play games once you finish your chores

we'll start the event as soon as everyone arrives

b. When and Whenever

- When refers to a specific moment or a particular event. It is used when the action happens one time, or at a definite/specific time.

Example :

We met when we were both at the park

- Whenever means every time or any time something happens. It is used for repeated actions or events that occur often.

Example :

Call me whenever you need help

c. When and By The Time

- As mentioned before, when marks the moment something happens.

Example :

When the show begins, please turn off your phone.

- By the time shows that an action is already completed before a certain moment in the future or past.

Example :

By the time we arrived at the station, the train had already left

d. Because and Now That

- Because introduces the direct reason for something.

Example :

I stayed home because it was raining hard outside

- Now that is used when a new situation or recent change explains the result. It often shows that the condition is different now compared to before.

Example :

Now that you have finished your task, you can take a break

e. Even Though and Even If

- Even though introduces a fact that contrasts with the result. The situation is real, but unexpected.

Example :

Even though the task was hard, she finished it on time

- Even if introduces a hypothetical or possible situation. The condition may or may not happen.

Example :

Even if it rains tomorrow, the event will continue.

Part B

1. Explain in your own words what an adjective clause is.

An adjective clause is a group of words that contains a subject and a verb and functions to describe a noun. It gives additional information about a person, place, thing, or idea. This clause usually begins with a relative pronoun or a relative adverb, and it acts like an adjective by telling us which one or what kind.

2. Explain the functions of each relative pronouns (who, whom, which, that, whose) and relative adverbs (where, when, why).

- Relative Pronouns

- 1) WHO : Refers to people and acts as the subject of the clause
- 2) WHOM : Used for people and acts as the object of the verb.
- 3) WHICH : Used to describe things or animals, either as subject or object.
- 4) THAT : Can refer to people or things, commonly used in essential clauses.
- 5) WHOSE : Shows possession, used for people or things.

- Relative Adverbs

- 1) WHERE : Refers to a place.
- 2) WHEN : Refers to a time.
- 3) WHY : Explains a reason, usually after “the reason”.

3. Provide one sentence of each.

- Relative Pronouns

- 1) WHO Example : The girl who helped me yesterday was very kind.
- 2) WHOM Example: The manager whom we met earlier gave us instructions.
- 3) WHICH Example: The phone which I repaired works perfectly now.
- 4) THAT Example: The project that they started last month has been completed.
- 5) WHOSE Example: The writer whose books are famous is speaking today.

- Relative Adverbs

1. WHERE Example: The library where I used to study has been renovated.
2. WHEN Example: It was the day when everything changed for him.
3. WHY Example: This is the reason why she refused the offer.

4. Explain the definition of essential and non-essential clause.

- Essential Clause

An essential clause gives information that is necessary to identify the noun. Without it, the meaning becomes unclear. This clause does not use commas.

- Non-essential Clause

A non-essential clause adds extra information that is not required to identify the noun. It uses commas.

5. Provide two sentences of each.

- Essential Clause

Example :

The student who arrived early got the front seat.

The laptop that she borrowed needs to be returned today.

The restaurant that serves traditional food is always crowded

- Non-essential Clause

The city, which is famous for its food, attracts many tourists.

Their new sofa, which they bought last month, is extremely comfortable.

My cousin, who works as a photographer, just opened a studio.
